

WEEKEND JOURNAL.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL.

FUTURES & OPTIONS / By Charlotte Kaiser

Al Fresco Film Series

The Cinespia film series brings a marble mausoleum in Hollywood Forever Cemetery to vivid life.

SUMMER-MOVIE attendance may be down, but films screened outdoors are still an attraction in the warmer months. From watching movies among sculptures at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh to seeing cinema amid the skyscrapers in New York City's Bryant Park, here are some notable summertime outdoor film venues around the country.

CINESPIA

Saturdays through Sept. 3
Hollywood Forever Cemetery
Hollywood

AT THE CINESPIA film series, movies are projected on a marble mausoleum wall near the graves of Hollywood legends Rudolph Valentino and Cecil B. DeMille. "Lolita" author Vladimir Nabokov might have been amused by the venue for the July 16 screening of Stanley Kubrick's 1962 adaptation of the racy and controversial 1955 novel. DJs spin before and after screenings. Suggested donation $10 per person. Films begin at 9 p.m. 323-221-3343; www.cinespia.org